

Pre-law studies

If you're passionate about the law ...

Liberty and justice for all. It's at the heart of the American idea. It's also at the heart of our legal system. If you want to be a champion of rights — or a righter of wrongs — a law career might be in your future. We'll help you prepare for it.

Getting to law school ...

Law schools don't have course prerequisites for admission. They seek skills. Specifically, they're looking for candidates highly proficient in reading and writing, adept at critical thinking and logical reasoning, fluent and persuasive in their communication. Those are the very skills a liberal arts college imparts to students, and which St. Norbert College imparts exceptionally well.

You can choose virtually any major to be on a pre-law track. Some of the most popular are:

Business • English • Philosophy • Political Science
History • Sociology • Psychology • Math

You also may pursue a pre-law certificate at St. Norbert. The program focuses on honing skills critical in legal interpretation and practice, and prized by law-school admission officials.

The St. Norbert advantage

“The mentorship I got at St. Norbert was far and away better than so many of my friends who went to really big institutions. The classes I was able to take at St. Norbert prepared me so well for law school classes; to have that preparedness and experience is worth way more in my opinion than some of those maybe “traditional” collegiate experiences that other people are looking for.”
